Enjoy an evening with the first African-American woman in space, Dr. Mae Jemison

Thursday, September 26
at Sinclair Community College

About Dr. Jemison

Serving six years as a NASA astronaut, Dr. Mae Jemison is an icon of the women's rights and civil rights movement, inducted into both the National Women's Hall of Fame (1993) and the International Space Hall of Fame (2004). After NASA, she began teaching at universities like Dartmouth College and Cornell University and founded research groups to continue the development of scientific knowledge. Since 2012, she has led the 100 Year Starship project, which researches ways to design and fund a spacecraft to take humans to another star within 100 years. She is a doctor, a dancer and astronaut, and holds nine doctoral degrees in the humanities, science and engineering.

We invite you to experience an evening with Dr. Jemison where she will share her journey, her triumphs and the obstacles she overcame to become the first African-American woman in space. Her message will include life changing advice for female future leaders in the Miami Valley.

As a sponsor of this event, your company will raise brand awareness by aligning with Girl Scouts—one of the most recognizable and respected brands in the world—while also providing local girls with amazing opportunities for mentoring, education, inspiration and adventure.

In 2018, 89 cents of every dollar donated to Girl Scouts of Western Ohio went directly to programming for girls.

About Girl Scouts

Girl Scouts of Western Ohio is one of the 10 largest and most successful Girl Scout councils in the country, serving more than 39,000 girl members and nearly 10,000 volunteers in western Ohio and southeastern Indiana. For over 100 years, Girl Scouts of Western Ohio has been building the female leaders of tomorrow.
